Wolfgang Voigt: GAS

Jan 22, starts at 20:00 h

Music | Mitte

Volksbühne

Knowing the name Wolfgang Voigt might be a basic in electronic music—he published music under the name Mike Ink, Blei, Love Inc. or Grungemann and founded the renown label, Kompakt.

The opening concert of this year's Clubtransmediale: Structures is one of the rare occasions to listen to Voigt's live project GAS, ranging between acid rave and archaic natural romanticism.

The concert is visualized with a video performance in cooperation with Petra Hollenbach, based on thousands of pictures Voigt took in the illusive undergrowth of German forests.

Pan Sonic and Yasunao Tone

Jan 26, starts at 21:00 h

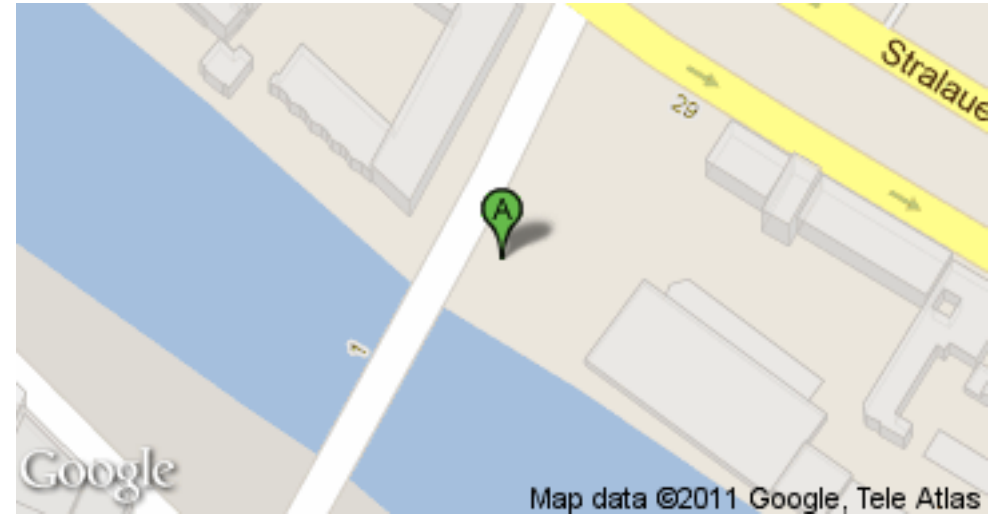

Pan Sonic's live performances bring out the best in their audiovisual concepts and musical force. Sadly after 17 years of joint creativity they decided to concentrate on their solo projects. Tonight they'll perform their reduced rhythms and raw electronic clangs from homemade analogue instruments together with a hypnotizing video projection.

Psychedelic, Noise & Pop

Jan 29, starts at 21:00 h

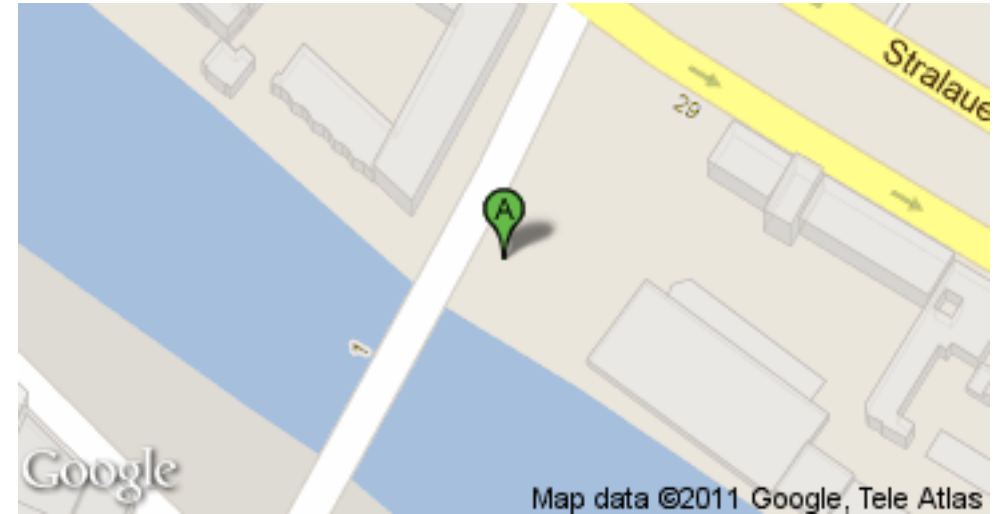

2008 was a major year for Fuck Buttons—a comet-style, rip-roaring ascent, with gigs at Europe's most significant festivals. Exquisite, loud music with dreamy melodies and tribal rhythms create a densely woven noise-carpet.

Trance-like, psychedelic pieces are performed tonight by Californian counterculture band Lucky Dragons, who reside somewhere between left-field pop, folk and psychedelic.
